

I. Active and Passive Voice (I)

In active forms the subject of the sentence is the person or thing that does the action. In passive constructions, the verb is performed by someone or something other than the subject; often, the action is done to the subject by someone else.

Active: The award-winning chef prepares each meal with loving care.

Passive: Each meal is prepared with loving care by the award-winning chef.

Verbs have two voices: active and passive.

In active voice sentences, the verb expresses the action in the sentence, the subject performs the action, and the object is the recipient of the action. Active sentences follow the pattern: subject-verb- object.

E.g., Jill kicked Jack.

In a passive voice sentence, the subject and object flip-flop. The subject becomes the passive recipient of the action.

E.g., Jack was kicked by Jill.

Reasons to use the active voice:

☞ The active voice is shorter and more direct.

Compare: Active: The waiter dropped the tray of food.

Passive: The tray of food was dropped by the waiter.

☞ The active voice is less awkward and clearly states relationship between subject and action.

Passive: Your request for funding has been denied by the review committee.

Active: The review committee denied your request for funding.

☞ The active voice sentence pattern propels the reader forward through your writing thus avoiding weak prose.

Reasons to use the passive voice:

☞ The agent (doer) of the action is unimportant.

e.g., The pyramids were built thousands of years ago.

☞ The agent is unknown.

e.g., Several robberies were committed during the night.

☞ The agent is common knowledge, and mentioning it would be redundant.

e.g. ,George Bush was elected in 2000.

☞ The writer desires to control focus of sentence.

1) to de-emphasize the agent's role in the action

e.g., The alarm was triggered by my son. [Passive construction shifts focus away from the son's responsibility.]

2) to emphasize the party receiving the action

- Jack was kicked by Jill.

Using the Auxiliary Verb “Be”

The passive voice is formed by using a form of the auxiliary verb “be” (be, am, is, are, was, were, being, been) followed by the past participle of the main verb.

Active

He loves me.

We took our children to the circus.

A thief stole my money.

Passive

I am loved.

The children were taken to the circus.

My money was stolen.

II. FUTURE TENSE (Chapter II)

The actions that are to take place in the future fall in the category of future tense. We have discussed the sub parts of future tense in detail in your Communicative English Skills I. Here under is the revision.

1) Simple Future Tense-

Indicates an action that will take place after the present time and that has no real connection with the present time.

For example, "She will visit her ailing grandmother soon."

"He will walk home."

Note: a the form of is- will/shall + verb

2) Future Continuous Tense-

Indicates an action in the future that is longer in duration than another action in the future.

For example, "He will be walking when it starts to rain."

Note: The form of is-will/shall be + verb + ing

3) Future Perfect Tense-

Indicates an action in the future that will have been completed before another time or event in the future.

For example, "By the time we arrive, he will have studied."

Note: The form of is- will/shall have + verb (past participle form or 3rd form of the verb)

4) Future Perfect Continuous Tense-

Indicates an action in the future that will have been continuing until another time or event in the future.

For example, "He will have been exercising an hour at 2:00."

Note: The form of is- will/shall have been + verb + ing

Notes: In the following table, you are provided brief notes about the different forms and functions (use) of the future tense in English with examples. Read and understand them. It is important and is taken from your Module.

Tense	Uses	Examples
Present progressive	Arrangements	I am meeting Eliza at 4:00 tomorrow afternoon. Rick is not attending the meeting. Is Julia coming to the event?
Be going to	Intentions	I am going to start eating healthier foods. We are not going to miss a single episode this season! Are you going to clean your room?
	Predictions based on current circumstances	Be careful! You are going to spill your tea! There are no clouds in the sky. It is not going to rain . The light is red. Is the car going to stop ?
Simple future	Promises	I will pay you back tomorrow. We will not forget Mom's birthday. Will you take the dog for a walk?
	Instant decisions	I am bored. I will take a short break. It is too cold. I will not go outside. Will you have juice or tea?
	Predictions	I think you will enjoy this book. Caroline will not arrive on time. Will people take vacations in space someday?
	Future facts	Wendy will be 30 next week. The sun will not set before 7:00 tomorrow evening. What time will the sun rise tomorrow?
Simple present	Time tables and schedules	All aboard! The train leaves in five minutes. Academic activities do not begin until February. Does Theodore's plane arrive soon?

III. MODAL VERBS (Chapter III)

Modal verbs are those helping verbs, which express the 'mode' or 'manner' of the actions indicated by the main verbs. They are special verbs which behave irregularly in English. They give additional information about the function of the main verb that follows it. The most commonly used modal verbs are shall, should, will, would, can, could, may, might, must. The verbs or expressions dare, ought to, had better, and need (not), used to behave like modal auxiliaries to a large extent and may be added to the above list. The following are function of modal verbs taken from your module. Modal are used to:

- Ask permission----- may, can, could

Examples: May I come in?

Could I use your pen, please?

- Make a request -----can, could

Example: Could you please give me the doctor's telephone number?

- Express a possibility—may, might, could

Example: It might rain during the night.

- Give advice or suggestion -----should Example: You should wear a helmet while riding your motorbike.

- Express necessity or compulsion----- must, have to

Examples: We must slow down while driving in front of a school.

I have to submit my project by tomorrow.

- Express prohibition must

Example: You must not talk loudly in the library.

- Express a promise or intention----- will, shall Example: I will mail you my address.

- Express a wish—may

Example: May you have a long life!

Here is a list of modals verbs with examples for further study:

Modal Verb	Expressing	Example
must	Strong obligation	You must stop when the traffic lights turn red.
	logical conclusion / Certainty	He must be very tired. He's been working all day long.
must not	prohibition	You must not smoke in the hospital.
can	ability	I can swim.

	permission	Can I use your phone please?
	possibility	Smoking can cause cancer.

	possibility	It could rain tomorrow!
may	permission	May I use your phone please?
	possibility, probability	It may rain tomorrow!
might	polite permission	Might I suggest an idea?
	possibility, probability	I might go on holiday to Australia next year.
need not	lack of necessity/absence of obligation	I need not buy tomatoes. There are plenty of tomatoes in the fridge.
should/ought to	50 % obligation	I should / ought to see a doctor. I have a terrible headache.
	advice	You should / ought to revise your lessons logical conclusion	He should / ought to be very tired. He's been working all day long.
had better	advice	You 'd better revise your lessons

IV. REPORTED SPEECH (Chapter IV)

There are two ways of relating what a person has said: direct and indirect.

In direct speech we repeat the original speaker's exact words:

He said, "I have lost my umbrella."

Remarks thus repeated are placed between inverted commas, and a comma is placed immediately before the remark. Direct speech is found in conversations in books, in plays and in quotations.

In indirect speech we give the exact meaning of a remark or a speech, without necessarily using the speaker's exact words:

He said (that) he had lost his umbrella.

There is no comma after say in indirect speech that can usually be omitted after say and tell + object. But that should be kept after other verbs: complain, explain, object, point out, protest etc. Indirect speech is normally used when conversation is reported verbally, though direct speech is sometimes here to give a more dramatic effect.

Grammar rules with examples

If we want to say what other people said, thought or felt, we can use the direct or indirect speech.
The direct speech: "I like it," he said. "Irene is late," he thought. "I will pass the exam," she hoped.

The indirect speech: He said he liked it. He thought that Irene was late. She hoped she would pass the exam.

The indirect speech is typically introduced by verbs such as say, tell, admit, complain, explain, remind, reply, think, hope, offer, refuse etc. in the past tense.

He said (that) he didn't want it.

She explained that she had been at the seaside.

If these verbs are in the past tense, we change the following:

a) verb tenses and verb forms b) pronouns c) the adverbs of time and place

A) Verb tenses

DIRECT SPEECH

Simple Present

"I never eat meat", he explained.

Present Continuous

"I'm waiting for Ann", he said.

Present Perfect

"I have found a flat", he said.

Present Perfect Continuous

He said, "I've been waiting for ages".

Simple Past

"I took it home with me", she said.

Future

He said, "I will/shall be in Paris on Monday".

Future Continuous

"I will/shall be using the car myself on the 24h", she said.

Conditional

I said, "I would like to see it".

INDIRECT SPEECH

Simple Past

= He explained (that) he never ate meat.

Past Continuous

= He said (that) he was waiting for Ann.

Past Perfect

= He said (that) he had found a flat.

Past Perfect Continuous

= He said (that) he had been waiting for ages.

Past Perfect

= She said (that) he had taken it home with her.

Conditional

= He said (that) he would be in Paris on Monday.

Conditional Continuous

= She said (that) she'd been using the car herself on the 24th.

Conditional

= I said (that) I would like to see it.

B) Pronouns

We have to change the pronouns to keep the same meaning of a sentence.

today

yesterday

the day before yesterday

tomorrow

INDIRECT SPEECH

that day

the day before

two days before the next day/the following day

the day after tomorrow	in two day's time
next week/year etc.	the following week/year etc.
last week/year etc.	the previous week/year etc.
a year etc. ago	a year before/the previous year

Note

If something is said and reported at the same time, the time expressions can remain the same.
"I will go on holiday tomorrow," he told me today. - He told me today he would go on holiday tomorrow.

"We painted the hall last weekend," she told me this week. - She told me this week they had painted the hall last weekend.

On the other hand, if something is reported later, the time expressions are different in the indirect speech.

Last week Jim said: "I'm playing next week."

If we say his sentence a week later, we will say:

Jim said he was playing this week.

Here usually becomes there. But sometimes we make different adjustments.

At school: "I'll be here at 10 o'clock," he said. - He said he would be there at 10 o'clock.

In Baker Street: "We'll meet here." - He said they would meet in Baker Street.

Reported questions

Direct questions become reported questions with the same word order as statements. The reporting verb say changes into ask, want to know, wonder...

"Where have you been?" he said. - He asked me where I had been.

"What time did it start?" he said. - He wanted to know what time it had started.

"Why won't he do it?" she said. - She wondered why he wouldn't do it.

In yes/no questions we use if or whether in questions. If is more common and whether is more formal.

"Will you come?" she asked me. - She asked me if/whether I would come.

"Did he marry Sue?" she said. - She wondered if/whether he had married Sue.

Reported commands, requests and advice

The commands, requests and advice mostly have the same form in English: verb + object + infinitive (advise, ask, beg, forbid, order, persuade, recommend, tell, urge, warn etc.).

In the direct speech we do not mention the person in the imperative. In the indirect speech the person addressed must be mentioned.

"Get up!" he said. - He told me to get up.

"Please, revise for the test," he said. - He urged me to revise for the test.

"Put on your coat," I said. - I advised him to put on his coat.

Negative commands, requests and advice are made by verb + object + not + infinitive.

"Don't hesitate," he said. - He persuaded me not to hesitate.

"Don't smoke," the doctor warned my father. - The doctor warned my father not to smoke.

Tell can introduce statements, commands, requests or advice. The form is different, however.

Statements with tell

"I'm leaving," he told me. - He told me that he was leaving.

Commands, requests or advice with tell

"Leave the room," he told John. - He told John to leave the room.

"Don't give up," the teacher told her students. - The teacher told the students not to give up.

Similarly ask is used in reported questions, commands, requests or advice in different forms.

Questions with ask

"Will you make coffee?" he said. - He asked me if I would make coffee.

Commands, requests or advice with ask

"Make coffee, please," he said. - He asked me to make coffee.

"Don't park in my place," Greg told me. - Greg asked me not to park in his place.

IV. RELATIVE CLAUSES (Chapter V)

Relative clauses are clauses starting with the relative pronouns who, whom, that, which, whose,), a relative adverb (where, when,). They are most often used to define or identify the noun that precedes them. Like all clauses, relative clauses have a subject and a verb. It is a dependent clause that modifies a noun by making it more specific or adding additional information about it.

- ☞ Do you know the girl who started in grade 7 last week?
- ☞ Can I have the pencil that I gave you this morning?
- ☞ A notebook is a computer which can be carried around.
- ☞ I won't eat in a restaurant whose cooks smoke.
- ☞ I want to live in a place where there is lots to do.
- ☞ Yesterday was a day when everything went wrong!

Choosing a relative pronoun

- ☞ The relative pronoun who --refers to a person or people.

People who live in New York lead very busy lives.

My sister, who works for the CBE, leads a very active life.

- ☞ The relative pronoun which --refers to a thing or concept

Eg. The lessons which we have learned are no more important.

- ☞ The relative pronoun that --most often refers to a thing or concept--is sometimes used to refer to a person or people, (usually only in informal writing or in speaking)

e.g. The book that you gave me is lost
The kid that I babysit threw your book in the trash.

Note: Some people consider that inappropriate when referring to people although most writers and speakers use it quite naturally. If you wish to be formal, always use who for a person or people:
e.g. The child who threw your book away was only three years old.

☞ The relative pronoun whose is used in place of the possessive pronoun. It must be followed by a noun. Example:

e.g. There's a boy in grade 8 whose father is a professional tennis player. (There's a boy in grade 8. His father is a professional tennis player.) e.g. The older one is a boy, whose name is Jonathan. In this sentence whose replaces the noun boy as a possessive noun (the boy's name is Jonathan).

☞ The relative pronouns where and when are used with place and time nouns.

e.g. New York is a place where people of many different cultures live and work together.
New York City, where millions of immigrants live, is sometimes called a Melting Pot.

The 1960's was a time when many Americans began to question the actions of their government.

☞ The relative pronoun whom, is used as the object of the relative clause and object of preposition.

❖ As an Object of a relative clause

e.g: My friend has two children, whom she loves very much. (In this sentence, whom replaces children as the object of the verb loves (She loves the children))

e.g: My science teacher is a person whom I like very much.

e.g: To many people the word whom now sounds old-fashioned, and it is rarely used in spoken English.

❖ As an Object of a Preposition

e.g: Jonathan has a little sister, with whom he plays all the time. (In this sentence, whom replaces the noun sister as the object of the preposition with (he plays with his sister).)

E.g. Jonathan has a little sister, whom he plays with all the time.

Types of relative clause: There are two types of relative clause.

1. Defining Relative Clause (Clauses That Make Nouns Specific)

E.g. Women who work are happier than women who don't work.

In the above sentence, the relative clauses who work and who don't work are used to make the noun women more specific. This type of relative clause changes the meaning of the noun it modifies.

2-- Non-defining Relative Clause (Clauses that Add Information)

E.g. Going to the movies, which I love to do, can be very expensive.

In the above sentence, the relative clause which I love to do is used to say something extra about going to the movies, but it does not change the meaning of that phrase.
